FOR PARENTS AND CAREGIVERS

How to use this pack

Print letter-size pages. Black-and-white is intentional and easy on ink.

Read before a new routine, or after, as a gentle debrief.

Pause on sensory pages. Your child can point, tap a board, or skip.

Celebrate any coping choice - headphones, break, comfort item, or words.

Ages about 3-5 with adult reading; about 6-9 shared reading.

Kid pages describe what can happen and choices a child may make. They do not demand eye gaze, still hands, or spoken words to continue.

Title

R.O.T.I. Tries Something New

Island kitchen • look, smell, choose

[simple line-art placeholder]

R.O.T.I. Tries Something New

Intro

R.O.T.I. sits at the table with Tanty Spice. A new plate is waiting. The food smells warm and spicy.

Journey Story • page 2 of 5

Sensory

The plate is close. Steam rises. The food looks orange and soft. R.O.T.I. can look first. Looking is enough.

Coping

R.O.T.I. can smell the food. R.O.T.I. can touch it with a spoon. R.O.T.I. can take a tiny taste, or put the spoon down. Choosing is okay.

Conclusion

R.O.T.I. tried something new in a small way. Tanty Spice is proud. Trying at your own pace is brave.

Title

Steelpan Sam at the Loud FÆte

Carnival energy • headphones and quiet corners

[simple line-art placeholder]

Steelpan Sam at the Loud FÆte

Intro

Steelpan Sam and Mango Moko walk toward the fÆete. Music is playing. People smiling and moving.

Journey Story • page 2 of 5

Sensory

The steelpan rings bright and loud. Drums boom. Voices cheer. The ground feels busy under their feet.

Coping

Sam can put on soft headphones. Sam can step to a quieter corner. Sam can v from the edge. Taking a break is okay.

Conclusion

Sam enjoyed the fœte in a way that felt safe. Loud joy can share space with quiet moments. Sam did it.

Salon or barber • snips, mist, breaks

[simple line-art placeholder]

Tanty and the Haircut Day

Journey Story • page 1 of 5

Intro

Today is haircut day. Tanty Spice walks with a friend to the chair. The mirror is shiny. The cape is soft.

Journey Story • page 2 of 5

Sensory

The cape rests on shoulders. Scissors make a snip-snip sound. A spray bottle mists cool water. The chair can spin a little.

Journey Story • page 3 of 5

Coping

You can hold a comfort item. You can ask for a break. You can look at a picture while the clippers buzz, or wait until they stop.

Conclusion

The haircut is done. The mirror shows a fresh look. You were calm and brave. Hair grows back. You are still you.
